FIFTY PERISH IN GASOLINE FIRE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ardmore, Okla., Sept. 28.—With thirty-five bodies recovered and nearly a score more of dead in the ruins of two solid blocks in the downtown districts of Ardmore, a dozen crews of men were working in short shifts today trying to uncover the whole horror of yesterday's disastrous explosion of a 250 barrel tank of gasoline. Workers reported early today that they could see five more bodies deep in the wreckage of the Maddin and Company department store.

A spark from a workman's hammer set off the blast that wrecked nearly a block of business buildings and started a fire that destroyed another block before it was checked. The victims were crushed by falling walls or caught in the falling timbers of wrecked buildings and burned to death, while hundreds stood by and watched them die, helpless to aid them.

The property damage was estimated today at more than half a million dollars. The estimate was made after martial law had been declared and insurance adjusters, working with the state troops had gone over the devastated section of the city.

Of the 35 bodies that had been removed from the debris early today only ten had been identified at dawn. Most of the others were so badly mutilated that identification was impossible.

In addition to the mutilated dead that filled the storerooms on the edge of the wrecked and burned district, more than 200 injured persons were being cared for in homes in the downtown districts. Not a house in Ardmore escaped damage by the force of gigantic explosion. Windows were broken and houses were dislodged from their foundations. When the huge tank of gasoline let go and the flames burst over the two blocks that had been showered with gasoline, wild panic ensued. Men, women and children ran about the streets like insane persons. A dense, black smoke covered the whole town. Streets were blocked with fallen timbers.

In spite of the confusion there were many acts of heroism that considerably lessened the death list. Rescue teams were organized and began working within a few minutes after the fire started. No aid was received from outside cities until five hours after the explosion.

No one slept in Ardmore last night. Those who were not working in the ruins were standing by waiting for the recovery of the bodies of some relative or friend.

Many mothers pressed as close as the military lines would permit to the department store ruins, tearfully praying that their missing daughters would be found alive. Some women broke through the lines of soldiers and were forcibly dragged back to the safety zone.

MARINES DISARM HAITIEN REBELS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Aboard U. S. battleship Connecticut, Cape Haitien, Haiti, Sept. 28.—Detachments of American marines were sent in all directions from Cape Haitien today into the interior to disarm the rebels whose resistance has resulted in the killing of one marine and the wounding of ten other in recent fighting. Col. Waller and Col. Cole are in command of the two principal zones of operations, while Major Butler, the hero of Vera Cruz, is landing the first battalion.

Each marine detachment took with it an armored automobile and a field piece. The guns will be used to smash the rebel trenches.

Two of the rebel leaders, General Morence and General Petion, sued for peace today. They sent a joint letter asking the American officers for a conference at which they might arrange for the surrender of their followers.

The body of a rebel officer who was killed in yesterday's fighting was brought in today.

GULF STORM MOVING NORTH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Orleans, Sept. 28.— Another great storm, similar to that which recently killed scores and caused immense damage on the Texas coast, is sweeping northward over the gulf of Mexico.

The following warning was issued by the weather bureau today:

A tropical storm attended by dangerous winds is central over the Gulf of Mexico. It is moving northward toward the mouth of the Mississippi. Its influences will be felt late tonight and Wednesday.

Knitting Machinery Sold.

L. Loevenheim of Amsterdam, N. Y., has bought the machinery in the shop of the Ulster Knitting Company and will remove it to Amsterdam.

SNOWSTORMS RAGE IN BALTIC REGION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Petrograd, Sept. 28.—Heavy snow storms are raging north of the Gulf of Finland and are rapidly sweeping south, snow flurries bringing the first touch of winter to the Baltic provinces. The approach of winter is expected to hasten the climax of the German attacks on Dvinsk within a short time.

Emperor William has ordered Field Marshal von Hindenburg to take Dvinsk this week and then march on Riga in order that these two important cities may be used as winter quarters for the Germans, according to statements made by Teutonic prisoners to Russian officers.

The resumption of the fierce German attacks on the Dvina river front is attributed to the Kaiser's instructions. Petrograd military experts analyze the situation thus:

The allies' offensive in the west has made it necessary to transfer large German forces to France and Flanders. To replace these veterans landsturm troops have been sent east. The exchange has weakened von Hindenburg, but he hopes by a general assault along the entire Dvina front to sweep across that stream. The conditions under which this assault is being made make it certain that the Germans will suffer terrible losses before they take Dvinsk.

Recent setbacks suffered by Russians on their left wing have cost them much of the ground they regained in Volhynia when they defeated the Austrians in the Lutsk-Dubno-Rovno triangle of fortresses. German reinforcement sent to aid the Austrians have helped the latter recapture positions in the Lutsk region and to advance along the left bank of the Styr river in the direction of Kolke, a fortified town which serves as one of the defences of Rovno.

Heavy Austro-German artillery is bombarding Kolki and it is apparent that the Teutonic troops aim to cross the Styr river there and advance from the northwest upon Rovno.

It is the general impression here that the Russian left wing will soon commence a strategic retrograde movement. In the official report issued last night it was stated that these forces "continue to perform deeds bordering on the extreme limit of human capacity."

FRENCH ARTILLERY BOMBARDS GERMANS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Sept. 28.—French artillery is deluging with shells the second line German trenches in Champagne today. Officers who arrived from the front this forenoon asserted that the bombardment now in progress is more terrific than that which preceded the victorious attacks of the French troops on the first line defences.

Heavy artillery has been brought to bear upon Tahure, where the Germans have constructed with concrete and steel the strongest underground fort along the entire front.

"No fortification can stand against the blast of guns now being directed against Tahure," said one officer. "Our shells are finding their marks and spreading destruction. Tahure is the center of the defences built along the Grand St. Hilaere-Cernay highway. These are of great strength and it is expected that General Joffre will maintain the bombardment for at least three days before again throwing in his infantry."

Fort Tahure lies in northeastern Souain and almost due north of Perthes and about three miles from the latter town. It is at the eastern edge of a thick forest.

Eleven Miners Entombed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Sept. 28.—Eleven miners and laborers who were entombed behind tons of culm and water that broke through an abandoned working into the Foster tunnel of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company at Coaldale yesterday, have not yet been rescued and mine officials in charge of the rescue work believe that it will be three days before the entombed men can be reached. The flow of water into the tunnel has been stopped, but tons of culm have broken loose, greatly delaying the rescue workers. Whether the men are living or dead is not known. Rescuers have heard no tappings and received no signs of life from the prison of the men. Every human effort is being put forth to reach the entombed men and rescue parties will work night and day in digging their way into the mine prison.

Workmen Killed in Tunnel.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Norristown, Pa., Sept. 28.—Six workmen were killed and eight others were injured when a Reading Railway train ran into a gang of laborers at the Phoenixville tunnel this morning. The workmen were engaged in enlarging the tunnel. Passengers were thrown in a panic for fear of being overcome with gas, but the trainmen conducted those in the cars to safety. Physicians were rushed to the scene and the injured workmen were taken to hospitals in ambulances.

PERCY ROCKEFELLER. WILLIAM E. COREY.

ROCKEFELLER AND COREY HEAD NEW STEEL COMBINE.

Percy Rockefeller and William Ellis Story.

New York, Sept. 28.—Details of the greatest steel transactions in years in the sale of the Cambria and Midvale plants, reveal the fact that the Rockefeller family, through Percy A. Rockefeller, son of William Rockefeller, has made a new departure by entering the steel field and that William Ellis Corey is to return to the industry to which he devoted himself from the age of sixteen and which he has only recently left.

Mr. Corey is president of the new company, which proposes to enter the business of making war munitions. The present capitalization of the Cambria and Midvale plants is $9,750,000 and this is to be greatly increased.

NEW LEADER IN THE ASSEMBLY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Sept. 28.—Already gossip concerning the coming legislative session is rife in political circles. The fact that Majority Leader Harold J. Hinman, Republican and Minority Leader Alfred E. Smith, Democrat, will not be members of the assembly next year has caused a gap in both parties which is unusual.

Assemblyman Hinman, who is an Albanian is now a deputy attorney general. Assemblyman Smith will be the Democratic candidate for sheriff of New York county in November.

Assemblyman Hinman was a candidate for speaker to succeed the late E. A. Merritt of St. Lawrence county, but he was defeated by Thaddeus C. Sweet of Oswego county who has twice been speaker. Assemblyman Smith has been speaker and for several terms has led the Democrats on the floor of the lower house.

There are two candidates for the Democratic leadership; Assemblyman Martin McCue and Assemblyman Charles D. Donohue, both of New York city. The logical candidate for floor leader of the Republican party is Assemblyman Simon Adler of Rochester.

Assemblyman McCue was chairman of the committee of excise during the session of 1915. He has served in the assembly since 1906. Assemblyman Donohue has been an assemblyman since 1912.

Assemblyman Adler has served in the lower house of the legislature since 1910. He has been given many important committee assignments.

Assemblyman McCue has confided his ambition to be the floor leader of the Democrats to many of his friends. He believes that he is entitled to the place by virtue of long service and familiarity with legislation and parliamentary procedure.

"I am a candidate and I feel confident that I shall be elected," said Assemblyman McCue during a recent interview. "I know the ropes and feel that I can handle the job."

Few legislators were heard more frequently in debate than Assemblyman McCue during the legislative session of 1915. He fathered several important measures, one being the so-called widows' pension bill, now a law.

If the Republican party controls the assembly in 1916, it is more than likely that Speaker Sweet will be elected and Clerk Fred W. Hammond of Syracuse will be returned as clerk. If the Democratic party has a majority of the members then McCue is likely to be a candidate for speaker. In any event he is a candidate for floor leader of the Democrats.

It is almost a precedent that both the Republican and Democratic floor leaders be new at the same time. Heretofore there has always been a veteran leader in the harness, but in 1916, both the Republican and Democratic floor chiefs will be new men.

If the Constitutional amendments are ratified by the people, the session of 1916, will be a highly important one, as enabling acts will be necessary to conform with the requirements of the amendments.

The fact that Adler, McCue and Donohue are candidates for leadership does not mean that there will not be more candidates. It is practically settled that Adler will be selected by the Republicans, however.

Fever Epidemic in London.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 28.—An epidemic of fever is raging here. More than 5,182 cases are under treatment. Within the past six days 550 fever patients have been admitted to hospitals in the metropolitan district alone.

RUSSIAN PLOT AGAINST JEWS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Sept. 28.—The "German-Jewish Central Society" has received details of an attempt of the Russian bureaucracy to instigate pogroms in different parts of Russia. According to a report published by the society the threatened massacres were only prevented by a number of influential members of the Duma and lawyers, who demanded an investigation of the charges against the Jews.

After the first defeats of the Russian troops in the province of Kovno the following report was published by the official organ in Petrograd:

"A number of German soldiers succeeded in sneaking into the villages, where they were hidden in cellars by Jews. The following night the Germans broke from their hiding places and murdered Colonel Wawilow with several hundred Russian soldiers, but reinforcements finally drove them off. The leaders of the Jewish traitors were executed at once and all other Jewish inhabitants have been sent to Siberia."

This report was sent throughout the Empire and posted at the street corners in every city, town and village. It caused immense excitement and the ignorant masses worked themselves into a frenzy. Memorial services were held everywhere for the "martyred" Colonel Wawilow and in many places mobs began to attack the Jews.

The situation became so critical that members of the Duma and prominent lawyers appealed to the government.

Prime Minister Goremykin ordered an official investigation and after many weeks of delay the commissioners appointed recently published the following report.

"Only three houses of the village Kushi are owned by Jews and there is not a single building in the town which has a cellar. Colonel Wawilow, who was said to have become a victim of the alleged Jewish treason, never existed, and no Jew was court-martialled or executed in the village.

"The town was in the possession of the Germans for a short time. When the enemy was driven out by a Russian battalion the commander of the latter established his headquarters in the house of a Jew named Kibart. The Jew gave all information he possessed in regard to the movements of the Germans and he warned the commander that the enemy would probably attack the village again.

"On the following day, the Germans bombarded the village and the house of Kibart was set on fire. The Russian commander ordered a detachment of soldiers to save the Jew and his family and as many of their belongings as possible. When the town could not be held any longer the Jewish and Christian inhabitants fled with the soldiers under a heavy fire of the German artillery. The Jews were protected and assisted by the Russian commander and his troops in every possible manner."

This report was published in Petrograd, but not in the provinces. The minister of the interior however, ordered all district governors to stop the memorial services for the "martyr," Colonel Wawilow.

Bretton Woods, N. H., Sept. 28.—The Presidential Range is snowbound today. The peaks are heavily covered and the sides of the mountains are frosted to the base. The road between Bretton Woods and Crawford Notch has been closed owing to the fall of the trees that were snapped off across it in the gale.

5,000,000 MEN IN GREAT BATTLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 28.—Furious counter attacks, in which asphyxiating gases, liquid fire, artillery and the bayonet are employed, are being launched by the Germans against the allies over the greater part of the 350 mile battle front in the western theatre, except at the eastern extremity, where storms have brought about a lull.

Five million men are believed to be engaged in this mighty battle in which the Germans are trying to check the great drive of the Anglo-French and Belgian forces. Not all these troops are actually on the firing line, a big proportion of them being held in reserve for quick transportation to points where the greatest danger threatens.

More than 600 aeroplanes are taking part.

Terrific fighting is reported from the Champagne and Argonne forest, where the Germans are desperately attacking in an effort to regain lost ground and remove the pressure to the German lines of communication which are being shelled by the heavy French guns.

Further progress is claimed for the British on the front stretching from La Bassee to Ypres although no definite figures were given.

From the North Sea to the Vosges a terrific artillery duel involving probably ten thousand guns is raging, and hundreds of thousands of shells are being thrown every day.

As the British and French sweep across the battered first line trenches to the second and third defences of the Germans they are finding a stiffened resistance, due to stronger works and the presence of reinforcements.

It is reported that Emperor William, alarmed by the gains of the allies in the first stage of the big drive, has rushed to the western front to inspire his men by his presence and help direct German operations.

Along the front lying westward from Lille to La Bassee and thence south to Arras, the Germans are struggling with the desperation of despair to stave off the crushing jaws of the vise which the British and French are swinging inward to smash the Teutons' salient and effect the capture of Lens and the important railway lines that pass through Lens.

It is believed that the war office, in detailing the fierceness of the fighting, is preparing the people for news of heavy losses although these are not expected to be as big, in proportion to the ground gained, as those at Neuve Chapelle. Giant howitzers of the British are sending their shells crashing into Lens in an effort to destroy railway tracks and forts of the Germans at that place.

Heavy fighting has developed along the Yser canal and around Dixmude in Belgium where the Belgians, supported by French artillery, are attacking the Germans.

British warships are still lying off the Belgian coast bombarding the German works. Military men have advanced the view that the British navy is feeling for an opening on the Belgian coast where troops can be landed to take Germans in the rear.

Up to the time this dispatch was written reports from the front gave the total number of prisoners taken from the Germans in the first stage of the drive as about 30,000. The Germans claim to have taken between 11,000 and 12,000 in counter-attacks.

POUGHKEEPSIE FAIR THIS WEEK

This is fair week in Poughkeepsie. The Dutchess County Agricultural Society opened its seventy-third exhibition in that city today. The fair will continue until Friday night, four big days in all and something doing every minute of the time. Governor Whitman was the guest of honor today and he opened the fair with an address. He led the atuomobile parade and heard 5,000 of the school children of Poughkeepsie rend the air in patriotic song.

An athletic carnival this afternoon after some $200 was divided among the successful automobilists and various funny contests in the infield track, kept things going right smartly.

The fair never had so many exhibitors. This applies to every department. There is some fast racing on the cards with $4,000 to be divided. The horse show will bring out all the smart turnouts from the wealthy colony along the Hudson and Millbrook. Big prizes are offered. The Midway is thickly filled with shows. There is some good vaudeville in front of the grand stand.

The judicial race between the horses of Justice Tompkins and Judge Seegar will take place Friday. The winner received a registered bull from J. Griswold Webb.

Post entries in the walking plow contest will be received until Friday morning when the unique demonstration takes place.

Communication Cut Off.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Sept. 28.—Telegraphic and railroad communication between Roumania and Bulgaria has been cut off, according to a dispatch from Lausanne. It does not state whether this action was taken by the Sofia or the Bucharest government.

DUMBA MAY SAIL ON OCTOBER 5

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Dr. Constantine Dumba will not sail for his Austrian home until October 5. The time for arranging a safe-conduct for him through the Anglo-French blockade is too short to permit his going on the steamer Rotterdam tomorrow, even though the official notifications of his recall reaches the state department today as expected. Consequently it is now expected that the discredited ambassador will make the journey on the steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, scheduled to sail from New York on October 5.

The state department still is without official word that Austria has agreed to recall the ambassador permanently and to disregard his application to be brought home on leave to report. While officials say that they are satisfied that this action has been decided on at Vienna because of the delay in communication between Vienna and Berne, Switzerland, there was no way of telling just when the official reply would reach Washington. So far as that is concerned officials explained that they have had no word from Ambassador Penfield since they directed him to notify the Vienna foreign office on Saturday that the question of a safe-conduct for Dr. Dumba would not be touched on until after the demand for his recall had been acted on. Unofficially the department has learned that the recall has been directed and Acting Secretary Polk said today that the official reply was "hourly expected."

With the elimination of Dr. Dumba the department will take up the German negotiations. Ambassador von Bernstorff has sent word that he is ready to proceed so soon as Secretary Lansing returns from his vacation. Officials today said that they believed the secretary might remain at Watertown for the balance of this week, as he was being greatly benefited by his stay on the lake, but they professed to have no knowledge of his plans and he may return at any time. Until the German situation is completely cleared up, no final action will be taken in the British note of protest.

CRISIS REACHED IN THE BALKANS

Berlin, Sept. 28.—(By wireless)—Dispatches from Budapest state that Greece has notified the Bulgarian government that it will offer determined resistance to the passage of foreign troops through its territory. They also report that the Servian minister at Sofia has left and that Bulgarian consuls in Macedonia have been granted "leaves of absence."

These reports are taken in Berlin as indicating that a crisis in the Balkans has been reached and that war is imminent.

All Greeks in Germany liable to military service have been ordered to report at the Berlin legation for instructions. Arrangements for their transportation to Athens are being made.

The Athens correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger reports that Premier Venizelos of Greece has failed in his efforts to effect an agreement with Roumania.

"This," the correspondent adds, "is considered to be proof of Roumania's attitude.

"Greek public opinion is steadily manifesting greater objection to active interpretation of the Serb-Greek compact, which Servia has already broken."

The Vossische-Zeitung's correspondent at Athens telegraphs that before King Constantine signed the mobilization order he consulted ex-Premier Gounaris, an advocate of strict neutrality.

RUSSIAN FLEET ATTACKS GERMANS

Petrograd, Sept. 28.—The Russian fleet has attacked and silenced German land batteries on the Gulf of Riga according to an official announcement issued by the admiralty today. Two Russian officers, commander Viazemsky and Captain Svienine and five other men were killed when a German shell fell on one of the Russian warships.

The admiralty's statement follows:

"During a bombardment of enemy land positions on the Gulf of Riga Saturday, a stray enemy projectile fell on one of our ships, killing Commander Viazemsky and Captain Svienine. At 10 a. m. our vessels concluded their bombardment, silencing all the batteries.

"Our additional losses totalled five killed and eight wounded."

President Goes to Princeton.

Washington, Sept. 28.—President Wilson left here for Princeton, N. J., this morning at 8 o'clock to vote at the primary election there today. He was accompanied by Secretary Tumulty who went on to Jersey City for the same purpose. The president will return immediately after voting, as he addresses the G. A. R. tonight.

PRIMARY DAY HAS ARRIVED

Today is Primary Day. The polls which opened at 3 o'clock this afternoon will remain open until 9 o'clock this evening in order to give all enrolled voters a chance to vote. Indications point to the fact that the vote will be light, as there are only contests in two of the city wards. In the Seventh ward Supervisor Frank P. Quigley, who is seeking a renomination on the Democratic ticket, is opposed by Anthony Bowers and Joseph Schuler, and in the Third ward where Alderman Schick is seeking a renomination he is opposed by James Miller, the Broadway confectioner. No person according to the election law can vote today unless he is duly enrolled and the primary election inspectors shall decide all questions that arise relating to the qualifications of voters.

BLOODY BATTLE IN CHAMPAGNE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Sept. 28.—Charging over blasted German trenches heaped with corpses, the French troops that rolled back the Germans in the Champagne region fought amidst such scenes of destruction and carnage as has not been seen in the western theater for many a month.

Details of the engagement which were brought here today by the first batch of wounded French soldiers to arrive from the scene, make up a thrilling chapter.

Following a stupendous bombardment from heavy French guns for three days and three nights, the French infantry surged forward on Saturday in the first of the bayonet assaults which were to net the allies a gain of nearly three miles in some places.

Many of the German soldiers were so dazed and stupified by the mighty cannonade that they could not resist but others, who had been rushed forward to support the first line, engaged the French soldiers in a fierce hand to hand struggle in the shell craters and amid the piles of dead and wounded.

The Germans fought bravely, but they could not withstand the wave of steel that engulfed them.

Most of the slightly wounded French soldiers arriving here bore such trophies as helmets, petrol cans, officers binoculars and German bayonets. One soldier calmly smoked a huge German pipe which he had picked up on the battlefield.

An infantryman of the line who was wounded in the first charge, gave this description of the battle:

"My regiment was detailed to support the first attacking troops and went into action at mid-day on Saturday.

"For three days and nights previously thousands of guns had belched their fire around us and none of us had been able to get any sleep in all that time. These were the guns that were smashing the first line trenches of the Germans and preparing the way for our offensive.

"On Saturday morning a big ration of soup was served to the men and afterwards we were drawn up and inspected. Finally our chiefs were satisfied that all was in readiness for the attack with infantry and the order was given to advance.

"With fixed bayonets we sprang from our cover and, calling like demons, ran toward the German lines. Already our comrades, who had charged in advance of us had over-run the German trenches.

"As we dashed upon the scene of the fighting fearful desolation met our gaze. Trenches were piled to the rim with corpses. All around us were huge holes torn into the earth by the French shells. From behind piles of earth we could see arms and legs protruding. Fearing a trap we raked these with our fire, but no attack came from those quarters for the Germans were all dead or so badly wounded they could not move. We swept over the first trenches and continued to advance with lightning speed.

"On our right was a platoon of German machine guns spitting their fire into our ranks. We charged upon them with the bayonet and bloody hand to hand fighting ensued. Many of the survivors threw up their arms and surrendered, others died fighting to the last.

"All the prisoners were so dazed and stupified that they did not know what was going on around them. This was caused by the terrific artillery fire to which they had been so long subjected."

Ambassador and Secretary to Meet.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Ambassador von Bernstorff and Secretary of State Lansing will confer at the Hotel Biltmore in New York next Friday, it was learned here this afternoon. At this conference, it is believed, the entire submarine controversy will be cleared up in a manner satisfactory to both the United States and Germany. Secretary Lansing sent word today from his camp at Henderson Harbor, N. Y., that he would see the German ambassador in New York.

RECIPROCITY

GOOD and bad are alike reciprocal. In other words, the good we give out echoes back to us, just as surely as the harm one does another returns and strikes back with equal viciousness.

So, here we see how simple, after all, is the problem of HOW TO LIVE, and, moreover, this is apparent: that self-interest is the only rational basis on which to teach morals or right-living.

MORE ABOUT FEE-SPLITTING.

Dr. Evans Tells How to Know a Fee-Splitter.

Dr. W. A. Evans here tells what the cost of fee-splitting is in terms of health or life to the patient. He tells how to detect the fee-splitter and what the remedy is for the evil. By special permission of the Chicago Daily Tribune.

Another reason for writing on the subject of fee-splitting is to tell the people how to know a fee-splitter. Is there any way whereby the people can know fee-splitters?

Sometimes, though not always. If a physician proposes to the patient that he, the physician, arranges the terms with the operator, it is a good guess that fee-splitting is at the back of the proposal. If he is anxious to accompany the patient to the operator, and, especially, if it is announced that he is to assist at the operation, it is a good guess that he is a fee-splitter.

In a country neighborhood it is often noted that a certain physician keeps a stream af patients flowing to a certain operator. This may not be the result of fee-splitting, but it should cause one to investigate further in case he is anticipating the need of operation There are clinics to which physicians go in large numbers. Occasionally it happens that some physician will be visiting one of these clinics at a time when some patient of his is there. What is written above may incline that patient to suspect that fee-splitting is taking place. In that event, I think the following rule can be applied There is no great clinic in this country that is run on a fee-splitting basis. The reputations of these clinics keeps them full of patients They do not need to pay commissions and they do not.

The difficulty in deciding why the difficult when the operator is less well known, and the clinic is less of a Mecca for physicians. In most of such cases, if the patient will spend a little time in investigating, he will be able to find out the reputation of the operator on the fee-splitting question In most instances he will find that the operator in question gets the business on the basis of his skill In some instances he will find that his home physician and the operator proposed have reputations for being fee-splitters. All in all, a reasonably intelligent man, exercising a fair degree of caution, should be able to diagnose the fee-splitters

Fee-splitting among medical men is an evil from which both patients and physicians suffer the consequences. Those who practice it constitute a minority of the profession In bad odor among their associates Patients can know them by certain signs.

Is there any remedy for the practice? Especially, is there any means by which people may end the practice of fee-splitting among physicians? Incidentally, by which a man may safeguard himself against fee-splitters?

The reason, at least one of the reasons, why fee-splitting is legal and moral among lawyers and business men and illegal and immoral among doctors, is because among the former fee-splitting, called brokerage fees, or by other names, is an above-board transaction. It is advertised widely. The fees, when not paid, are sued for and recovered in the courts. It is thoroughly established in custom. The man who pays knows before he starts who gets the money, and how much he is to get. If the fee-splitting physicians would be equally open in their transactions, the state law against fee-splitting would fail to cover the case, and in time the custom of fee-splitting might be established. But that will not be the solution of fee-splitting, because the men who practice it could not profit by any fair procedure They live by taking unfair advantage of their patients, and of physicians generally. They would oppose this proposal, because it would be in the interest of fairness As they are the people who benefit from the evil of fee-splitting, their opposition would kill the proposal.

Is there any other remedy? The various state laws are partial remedies They do not, will not, and cannot cure, but they help. The action of the American Medical Association, American College of Surgeons and the various state and local health societies are partial remedies They cannot cure,but they help.

The complete remedy, as I see it, lies with the people themselves. Twenty years ago there were but few hospitals, and the people knew nothing about operators. There was deep mystery about surgeons, operators generally, surgery, and all things surgical. In consequence of this, ignorance and mystery, abuse of various kinds, was inevitable

Says Saleeby, in Surgery and Society, "Dishonest men there will be amongst the ranks of surgeons as amongst the ranks of bishops, and the enemies of surgery, or of episcopacy, will make the most of the fact."

It is to the credit of the profession that the proportion of fee-splitters among surgeons is less than ten per cent, and among physicians at large is still smaller.

But at present there is no occasion for mystery and no justification for ignorance. Every man should be well enough informed to decide for himself who is to operate, and how much he is to pay, and to whom. Among people generally there is an erroneous idea as to who decides for a man, what doctor shall care for him, what treatment shall be given, what diagnosis shall form the basis of treatment. The erroneous opinion is that the physician decides. The law holds that the patient himself decides each of these questions. The doctor makes his examination, states what he has found, what he thinks, having heard the physician's statement, makes his decision.

Is it possible for a patient to pick out his operator without making an excessive number of mistakes? Yes. How? There are medical directories in considerable number. One of these, the American Medical Directory, gives the age, the school of graduation, in part the experience, and, especially, the hospital experience, the hospital and school connections, and the special line of practice of every physician in the country. Polk issues a national medical directory. The roll of the American College of Surgeons contains information as to the best American operators. In the larger cities there is always a local medical directory. These directories are easy of access.

I dare say that there is no town of five thousand inhabitants in the United States in which one or the other of these directories cannot be found in some physician's office.

If he cannot get one otherwise, why would it not be wise precaution for a man contemplating an operation to purchase one? Would it not be good judgment to inquire about a proposed operator? Does he operate in high grade hospitals with up-to-date equipment? Does he belong to medical societies? How does he stand among his fellow craftsmen? In the community at large? Is he a man of good judgment and good common sense?

Is there anything else that can be done? Yes. Let the public keep informed as to physicians, surgeons, medicine and surgery. Let them read what the state boards of health put out. Let them read magazine articles and books dealing with the subject. Let them keep in touch with local hospitals and what is being done therein. Through knowledge among people, and only in that way, can abuses be permanently eradicated. Says Saleeby, "Every new access of human power, of whatever kind, tests the fundamental thinking of the generation which receives it."

Surgery is a new access of power to our generation To prevent abuse from developing out of it, our people must interest themselves in it, learn about it, and equip themselves to decide for themselves among surgeons and surgical procedures. This is the final and complete cure for fee-splitting.

Songs Develop National Spirit.

It seems strange that the world has not done more with singing, that is with popular singing In this regard we are far behind some of the other nations, for example, the Germans They have many choral societies, in which they sing songs of the father land, and do much to develop the national spirit.

DR. SWINBURNE OF ALBANY,

Makes Wonderful Cures Without Surgery

The Doctor Says:

The craze for cutting is still growing. A great many doctors advise operations when entirely unnecessary. Not that it is always done to make more money from the case, but given sufficient time to study and research to enable them to make correct diagnosis of obscure diseases, or to understand how to treat such cases successfully with improved medical methods. Too many doctors merely accept the ideas and follow the practice of other physicians and advise operations because it is a popular medical craze. Some doctors will even perform operations, when they know that other treatment would produce a cure. Surgery may be necessary in some cases, but many serious cases, where physicians had declared an operation was the only means which would offer a hope of saving life, the use of the proper treatment did produce a cure, and the patient restored to health, without the danger of an operation. A recent case will prove of interest. A young lady, supposed to be suffering from appendicitis. Four doctors, two of whom were prominent surgeons, had advised this patient that an operation was absolutely necessary. A thorough examination found it was not a case of appendicitis at all, but one of obstruction of the bile ducts and impaction of the gall bladder. Treatment was given immediately which would remove the obstruction and reduce the inflammation. This was done and in a few days the patient was entirely relieved of all suffering, and has since made a complete recovery. There are many similar cases where operations were performed and the results often times proved fatal, where a correct diagnosis and the proper treatment would have saved human life and suffering. Cases of gall stones can often be cured without operation, as well as many other troubles, including special diseases of women. If patients are advised to submit to the dangers of surgery, they should not consent until they obtain the opinion of a specialist who believes more in the efficiency of improved treatment rather than the wild craze for operations.

Diseases being successfully treated include Catarrhal Troubles, Stomach or Intestinal Disorders, Gall Stones, Liver or Kidney Diseases, Dropsy or Heart Affections, Shortness of Breath or Asthma, Chronic Coughs or Lung Diseases, Rheumatism or Neuritis, Paralysis, Fits, Neurasthenia or other Nerve Troubles, Eczema and blood diseases, Special Weakness, Debility, Malnutrition and Private Diseases of Men and Women.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT 28, 1915.

The familiar story of the miser starving to death in a room filled with gold is brought to mind by the condition of affairs in the Scandinavian peninsula. The prices of all kinds of food have risen to almost prohibitive heights, while the vaults of the national treasuries and of the banks are filled to overflowing. The Bank of Norway, for example, holds $40,000,000 in gold coin, which is twice as much as it had a year ago. The reason is that these countries have been exporting too much to Germany, so that the merchants could take advantage of the high prices there. Now that it is all but too late, Sweden has placed an embargo upon food exports and Norway is about to follow her example. Here we have a perfect illustration of the rich growing richer and the poor poorer. It can hardly be doubted that Scandinavia will shortly join with the United States in demanding that there be no further interference with commerce between our country and neutral ports. Hungry men do not feel reverence for Orders in Council or for principles of neutrality.

Prospective purchasers of automobiles—and that means almost everybody in these days—will be pleased to learn that there is a movement in the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce for establishing a uniform date on which all manufacturers shall announce their new annual models. A committee which has been appointed to consider the matter is said to be in favor of making the date later than September. It strikes us that December would be about right. It is a great hardship for the owner of a machine to find its value arbitrarily decreased in the middle of the season, or even to have it made unfashionable by the appearance of a newer model. It is also annoying to the purchaser to have models come out every little while, so that he is hardly ever up-to-date, even when he buys a new car yearly.

KEEPING GERMS FROM FOOD.

That the spreading of a typhoid fever epidemic could be prevented in a great measure by the use of what is known among the medical fraternity as the Widal test was the opinion expressed by O. McDaniel, M. D., and E. M. Wade, M. A., of the division of preventable diseases, Minnesota State Board of Health, in an interesting paper prepared by them entitled "The Significance of Typhoid Carriers in Community Life, with a Practical Method of Detecting Them," which was read before the section of public health officials, American Public Health Association, at Jacksonville, Florida, last year. The paper in full is printed in the August number of the American Journal of Public Health.

The value of the Widal reaction in determining typhoid carriers has received very little place in this country in routine investigations or in literature. Last year this test was used in the investigations of the Minnesota health board and five interesting cases are cited in which the test was successfully used. Because of the almost constant finding of the Widal reaction in the blood of bacillus carriers and because of the experience of others as well as the writers of the paper they desired to call attention again to the value of the Widal reaction as a preliminary test in attempting to locate carriers.

When one considers the large numbers of cases that have been tracted to one carrier, especially through the handling of food, surely the larger good of the many overshadows the hardship wrought upon the individual. A positive Widal reaction in unvaccinated persons so certainly indicates infection with typhoid bacilli that it is suggested that it might properly be used as an indicator for the exclusion of persons from work concerned in the handling of food or milk where the public health is concerned such as dairies, creameries and milk depots, including milkers and distributors, in bakeries, hotels restaurants and boarding houses, and in all schools, hospitals and penal and other institutions.

Health departments might place this test on their official score cards for dairies, creameries and so forth, and thereby educate the public to demand that typhoid carriers be excluded from these occupations.

The medical fraternity has found that typhoid fever is spread by some people who are known as carriers and it would not be a bad idea for the local board of health and the health officer to consider the advisability of adopting and using the suggestion contained in the paper. Every once in a while Kingston as well as other cities has a typhoid fever epidemic and if it could be averted by the use of the Widal test as suggested it would be worth while considering the adoption of the Widal test and place it on the official score card gotten out by the local board of health. Now that there is a laboratory in Kingston the tests could be made there without having to send the samples to be tested out of town.

THE PRACTICAL.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

"A book of verses underneath the bough,
A jug of wine, a loaf of bread—and Thou
Beside me singing in the wilderness—
Oh, wilderness were Paradise enow."

The sentiment is much too pretty to destroy or ignore, the homage too acceptable to turn aside; for they breathe the spirit of romance and love.

But sentiment, homage, romance and love are not all there is to life, and though they may not "sicken and decay," they must grow a bit dim and merge at last into the more practical demands of pure affection, which refuses to remain forever satisfied with bread, wine or even—Thou.

One wonders sometimes at the courage of a young man who asks the "Thou" of his dreams to walk with him the long way of life, sharing the simple bread and wine after he has spent his substance in more royal and luxurious ways.

When he has earned in fair abundance, scattered his salary to the four winds of pleasure and comes laden only with bread and wine, then it is neither sordid nor mercenary to say it is scarcely fair to the woman, who has a right to expect more sumptuous fare from one whose capacity warrants it.

The average woman keeps before her the vision of marriage; but, like the menial at the banquet of the king, tradition has pronounced it unseemly for her to speak until she is addressed. And the tradition of our land does not bid her bring any dowry; so she simply waits for something to happen.

The average man has a similar vision and sometimes expects to change its faint outlines for a happy reality. Tradition privileges him to speak; it counsels him to come bearing all the gifts that love can offer, but it cautions him to remember the practical—and something more than bread and wine.

Along with the prattler of love, a man owes the woman he hopes to marry some of the fruits of his work, and if his capabilities permitted something better, and he still approaches empty-handed, she well may falter on the brink.

It is far from true to say that economy that begins at the altar is too late; but it is not unjust to say that it is unfair to spend with lavish hand in the free days of bachelorhood and shut down, perforce, when the two travel together.

One might willingly continue on a road of economy that had been earlier traveled, but when the way has been along free expenditure, with "anything for pleasure" the motto, there is ground for resentment.

Doubtless there is a strengthening effect in wholesome poverty, and the cynical poverty which sends love ingloriously out of the window when poverty comes in by the door savors too much of heresy for acceptance by any but the most skeptical.

But if a man dreams of matrimony, ever so faintly, he is brave indeed if he thinks of approaching the altar without having prepared, in some measure, for financial reefs that are certain to appear before his horizon.

In the days of Grecian splendor a symbolic legend was carved over the doors of a beautiful temple: "Be Brave! Be Brave! Be Brave," and when the last door was reached, the qualified climax came: "Be Not Too Brave."

And it might be well for the prospective Benedict to bear the last injunction in mind.

A man who, financially, has majestically come into his own, once announced to his wondering friends that on his wedding day he appeared in all the bravery of borrowed finery, for he literally had not a wearable coat to his name.

He was brave, far too brave; for his story also told of long years of pinching, almost grinding poverty, which left their imprint upon the two who walked, together, to be sure, but still through what he termed "a fiery furnace."

They were young, their hopes need not have been buried, but he might have waited until the ambition, good health and good morals that constituted his wealth had yielded enough to permit them to start, with fairer prospects, the home drama, which may record a long, beautiful story or may register nothing but failure.

Marriage is for life, and just a few years at the threshold are not lost or in vain when spent in preparation for the long years of companionship, which may be idlylic or prosaic and dull, but which are certain to bring much that is practical.

Gold is no cure-all; and sometimes it brings more of turmoil and unhappiness than of bliss; but it does soothe and soften many a rough place. And since woman is bidden to come "prepared," is it too much to ask man to wait until he has fortified himself with enough to make the way a bit easier?

Next to Nature.

Emerson Hough, the author sportsman, was praising in Chicago our numerous national parks, some of which he helped to found.

"I am glad to see," he said, "that this summer thousands of our citizens are getting next to nature in the Yellowstone and Glacier and Rainier parks instead of wasting time and money in effete Europe.

Crook Cook.

Edith Wharton, the noted novelist, was talking in New York about French housekeeping.

"The one drawback," she said, "is that your cook does your marketing. She markets for cash, too. The result is a very frank kind of cheating.

"I said once to a cook in Paris:

"'Now, if you are strictly honest, I'll give you five francs extra at each month's end. What do you say?'

"The cook hesitated, then she answered:

"'I'll think it over carefully, madam, and let you know by decision this evening.'"

The Great Kentucky Central.

A railroad president spoke at a dinner in Boston on railway safety.

"Why, the day may come," he declared, "when all roads will be as safe as the Great Kentucky Central.

"A passenger on that railroad said to the conductor:

"'Do you use the block system on this line?'

"'No; we ain't got no use for the block system, stranger.'

"'Oh, I suppose, then, you use electric or pneumatic signaling?'

"'No; no use for them, nuther.'

"'Then you have train despatchers and run your trains by telegraph?'

"'Nope.'

"'But when you stop between stations, you at least go back a hundred yards and flag the rear?'

"'Nope, stranger; nope.'

"'Then,' said the passenger, angrily, 'all I've got to say is that this road is run in a criminally reckless manner.'

"The conductor frowned, took out a plug of tobacco and snapped off a chew viciously.

"'Stranger,' he said, 'iif you don't like this line, say so, and I'll stop the train and you can git off and walk. I'm the president of the line and the sole owner. This is the Great Kentucky Central, and, stranger, don't you forget it. She's seven miles and a half long. She runs from Paint Rock to Nola Chucky. This is the only train that travels on the Great Kentucky Central, and, what you hear snortin' ahead is our only engine. We ain't never had a collision. We ain't never had an accident. What's more, we never will. Now, are you satisfied, stranger, or will I pull the string and let you git out and walk?'"—Boston Post.

Andrew Carnegie consented to see a reporter while he was playing clock golf on the Newport estate which he has rented for the summer.

CARE OF ORCHARDS.

Fall Protective Work Against Gipsy And Brown-Tail Moths.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28—In the areas infested by the gipsy moth or the brown-tail moth, much effective work can be done in the fall to reduce the damage that these insects are likely to cause the following year, according to the entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The caterpillars of the brown-tail moth spin a web in the fall which remains on the tips of the twigs and branches during the winter. These webs should be cut and burned so that injury will not be caused by the caterpillars the following summer. Particular attention should be given to webs of this insect on trees which grow around dwellings or in orchards.

The apple, pear, cherry, oak and willow are among the plants which are favored as food by the brown-tail moth caterpillars. In order to minimize the damage which is likely to result, as much time as possible should be devoted to cutting and burning worthless or seedling apple trees and wild cherry trees and brush. If this is done along the roadways and fences, the appearance of the region will be greatly improved. Care should be taken to protect pine and other coniferous trees, and hickory and ash should not be cut as they are not favored for food either by the caterpillars of the gipsy moth or by those of the brown-tail moth. A general clean-up such as has been mentioned will greatly assist in controlling this insect. The oak is a favored food of the brown-tail moth and of the gipsy moth, and wherever it is possible to eliminate oaks less annoyance from these pests will be experienced.

In cutting wood in the winter for the purpose of fuel, the farmer would do well to select and cut trees which are favored as food by these insects. In this way he will not only secure the fuel which he desires, but will at the same time decrease the food supply of the pests mentioned. It is needless to say that in cutting wood for fuel, all sickly or diseased trees should be selected so that the stand that remains will be healthy and vigorous. Each owner must make the selection for himself, but a great deal can be accomplished by planning the work a little in advance so that the necessary amounts of fuel can be obtained, the preferred food plants of these insects reduced in number, and the condition of the woodlot improved.

The gipsy moth occurs in the egg stage during the winter, and much valuable work can be done in bringing about its control by treating the eggs masses with creosote, applied with a brush. This destroys the eggs so that the next brood of caterpillars is reduced.

For the information of residents of the district infested by the gipsy moth and the brown-tail moth, it should be said that this area has been placed under quarantine by the Federal Horticultural Board and that nursery stock and living plants can not be shipped outside the area unless the trees or plants have been examined by an authorized inspector. The same products, as well as Christmas trees, forest products, and stone and quarry products, can not be shipped outside the area infested by the gipsy moth unless they have been inspected and certified to be free from this insect. The purpose of this quarantine is to prevent these insects from becoming established in other parts of the United States.

Webs of the brown-tail moth which are present on the trees during the winter, and egg clusters of the gipsy moth which may be on trees, cordwood, lumber, boxes, crates, or other containers which stored near infested trees, are likely to be shipped long distances. For this reason, all owners should be particularly careful to keep their grounds free from these insects, and, in case shipments of any kind are to be made, to notify the nearest inspector so that there will be no delay in having the examination made in order that the goods may go forward without disappointment either to the shipper or purchaser.

Gipsy moth or brown-tail moth infestation should be treated with special care on grounds from which wood or plant products are to be shipped. The work of these insects which is being carried on by the Department is directed from the branch office of the Bureau of Entomology, 43 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

Syria.

(Copyrighted by Mortimer Downer, 1915.)

Mrs. Helen Brown, wife of J. A. Brown, professor of physics in Protestant College, Beirut, Syria.

Mrs. Brown, you have lived in Syria a number of years?

Yes, I lived there five years and got to know something of the country.

Would you mind telling me something of its people?

I would be very glad, indeed, to tell you anything I know.

Are the people of Syria hospitable?

Very. Exceedingly. It is their chief national trait.

Are they prejudiced against Christians?

That is difficult to say. In the interior they are. The Moslems in Beirut are not. They live together with the foreigners very happily. One-third of our students are Moslems.

Are the students eager to learn?

They are. It is hard for them to learn mathematics and physics. In those subjects they are backward. They are quick to learn languages, and they make very good doctors.

Are they an energetic people?

No, they are not. They have the Oriental slowness. The women do most of the hard work, and the men sit around for hours and hours and talk and talk.

What do they talk about?

Mrs. Brown laughted and said, Oh, I don't know. They know very little about men and affairs. They just sit around and smoke and talk—well probably little idle gossip mostly about their neighbors. However, the better are very well educated.

Don't the men work?

Oh, yes, they do some. They work a little and get a little money and then live it all up. When it is all gone they go to work again. Living is very cheap and a little money will keep them a long time.

Are they interested in their work?

I will illustrate how they work. It always takes three men to do a job. If they are digging a ditch, one man shovels the dirt in a pail. Then he sits down and puffs a cigarette, while the second one pulls the pail up with a rope. Then the third man takes his turn and empties the pail. They all smoke in between their turns.

Is labor considered elevating?

Oh, no, on the contrary, it is considered degrading to work, to do any kind of manual labor. No man would ever think of ever marrying a girl who had ever gone out to service. I know of one woman who almost worked her finger tips off so that her six grown daughters could sit at home and fold their hands, or at best do a little needlework.

What about their homes?

They are very simple—almost no furniture at all, and no chairs. They sleep on the floor and have a sort of mattress that they roll up in the morning. The houses are all built of sandstone. The roofs are flat and made of combination of cement and mud.

Does it keep out the water when it rains.

Oh, no, when it rains hard it leaks badly. The sandstone is as porous as a sponge. The houses in winter are very damp when it rains. But Syria has the most wonderful sun in the world. It never rains long at a time. It may rain hard in the morning, but in the afternoon the sun comes out and dries everything up. As soon as it stops raining everybody goes out of doors.

How could exist in such wet houses?

The foreigners are getting tile peaked houses which are very comfortableable.

Do the Syrians think that an improvement?

No, they like their own style best, as the roofs are flat.

The family practically live on the roof all summer.

They put up poles on the roof and stretch a sort of canvas to protect them from the sun. The children play there all day.

They run around but never fall fall off.

What about their cooking and their food?

Their food is very rich, everything being cooked in olive-oil. They eat a great deal of sugar and preserved fruits.

They are like moslems very temperate as to intoxicating drinks.

What about their marriage customs?

They marry very young. Some girls as young as nine years.

That is however changed now, and I think a girl must be thirteen years old to marry. There was one girl who was a grandmother at twenty.

Have the people any inspirations?

Mrs. Brown paused a moment and then answered slowly, "they are very content to let things as they are. They are very happy.

How much better to give the whole attention to what one is doing, but how many do it? LAST HONORS TO DEAD SAILORS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Past thirty thousand veterans of the civil war who stood with bared heads, four gun-carriages, each conveying one flag-draped coffin bore from the Washington navy yard today to Arlington cemetery, the remains of fourteen men who perished in the disaster to the submarine F-4 beneath the waters of Honolulu harbor last March.

The bones of these heroes, two officers and twelve enlisted men, were dragged from the bottom of the sea, but no man could tell what was the body of the dead. Companions in death, their bones were co-mingled today in the four coffins. They lie now in one grave.

Some were Protestants, some Catholics—and that they might go to their account with the benison of their different faiths, a Protestant and Catholic chaplain officated jointly in the funeral services at the grave.

It was a fitting coincidence that the funeral should be held during the forty-ninth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic and that the line of march from the navy yard to the cemetery should include the stretch of Pennsylvania avenue over which the veterans passed in review before President Lincoln fifty years ago and over which a few thousand survivors of that event will march tomorrow.

The honorary escort was in command of Capt. W. D. Leahy, commander of the Dolphin, secretary Daniels official representative.

In the first carriage following the funeral caissons were the widow of Lieut. Alfred L. Ede, comander of the ill-fated F-4 and a bride of less than a year: J. T. Parker of Murray, Ky., the brother of Ensign Timothy A Parker, a guest of Lieut. Ede, when the submarine made the fatal plunge, and a few of the friends and relatives of the enlisted men.

Beside Lieut. Ede and Ensign Parker, the nineteen men who perished with the submarine were:

"Frederick Gillman, gunner's mate, first class, of St. Louis; Frank N. Herzog, electrician, second class, Salt Lake City; George T. Ashcroft, gunner's mate, first class, Los Angeles. Clark G. Buck, gunner's mate, second class, New Orleans; Ernest C. Carvin, machinist's mate, second class, New Orleans. Harley Holwell, seaman, St. Louis; Walter F Covington, machinist's mate, first class, Byers Texas; George L. Doeth, electrician, second class, Portland Oregon; Allstone Grayne, chief electrician, Mendocino City, Calif.; Edwin S. Hill, machinist's mate, first class, Etowah, Tenn.; Francis M. Hughson, machinist's mate, first class Los Angeles; Albert F. Jengle, electrician, second class, Festus, Mo.; Archie H. Lunger, gunner's mate, second class, Vallejo, Calif.; Horace L. Moore, gunner's mate, first class, Spring [illegible], Ark.; William S Nelson, chief machinist's mate, Los Angeles, Calif.; Frank G. Perard, chief gunner's mate, Laverne, Calif.; Charles H. Wells, machinist's mate, second class, Norfolk Va.; Henry A. Withers, gunner's mate, first class, San Diego, Calif.

Eighteen of the twenty-one bodies were recovered. Of these four, Ashcroft and Mahan, were buried in the naval cemetery at Mare Island, Cal. The other two, Herzog and Wells were buried by their families, respectively in Salt Lake City and Norfolk, Va.

Fire in Roosevelt Home.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Poughkeepsie, Sept. 28.—Prompt action by the night watchman in putting out the blaze prevented the incendiary attempt to burn the $50,000 home of Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy. The watchman discovered the fire in a pile of shavings which were saturated with kerosene. The blaze had started in a new cellar which was being constructed.

Building Master Men

Potash, sodium, lime and iron are some of the vital mineral salts necessary to proper nourishment of muscle, brain and nerves, but are not found in proper abundance in white bread and many other foods.

Grape-Nuts

Grape-Nuts food is splendid for brain workers, and ideal for school children. Being partially pre-digested, it is quickly absorbed by the system—going directly to the upbuilding of sinew, brain and nerve without overloading the stomach.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY YIELDS TO WILSON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Austria-Hungary has bowed to President Wilson's will. Ambassador Dumba notified the state department today that he had been "unconditionally" recalled by his government. He asked safe-conduct for his return home. Acting Secretary of State Polk announced that the safe conduct would be obtained for the ambassador

The latter will sail for home on October 5, on the Nieuw Amsterdam.

State department officials declared that with the sailing for home of Ambassador Dumba his case is finally closed. In recalling him "unconditionally," Austria Hungary has signified to this country that the ambassador has over-stepped his authority and that the action of the United States in demanding his recall was warranted.

Acting Secretary Polk stated today that he had received unofficial advice from Ambassador Penfield at Vienna that the action announced by Ambassador Dumba today would be taken. Mr. Polk said that Minister of Foreign Affairs Burian had told Ambassador Penfield last Saturday that Austria intended to recall Ambassador Dumba as desired by President Wilson

Minister Burain said that Mr. Dumba would not be sent back to the United States, making it plain that his recall was final.

At the British embassy, it was said today that safe conduct will be issued for Ambassador Dumba within 24 hours after it is requested

Ambassador Dumba's written statement that his government had recalled him "unconditionally" will suffice for the state department, for the present. Acting Secretary Polk made it plain that he would ask for the ambassador's safe conduct as a result of his message and that he would not await direct official word from Vienna, though he believes that the latter will be forthcoming soon.

"The incident is now closed," was the official statement issued from the state department. That was the only comment made for publication.

JUSTICE TO DOCTORS.

A Few Remarks Suggested by a Pernicious Publication.

The Lamar Democrat is published in Lamar, Mo., once a week. What follows is from an editorial that appeared in the issue of June 10, 1915 Those who read it will realize why it is unnecessary to make any comment.

Every week we read a journal that is devoted quite hotly to medical freedom. Judging from what this seven-day periodical of enlightenment has to say, we are in great danger of a vast medical trust, that will sit heavily and [illegible] upon us, poisoning us with deadly serums and vaccines, gagging us with nauseous decoctions of mephitic herbs.

Is there really anything the matter with our present medical freedom in this country? Is there any damn fool "ism," any absurd claim, any sort of "Eny, Meny, Miney, Mo" business that we cannot try upon our diseased and tortured bodies if we are so minded?

Truth compels us to answer, None.

Consider for a minute what has been done by the regular school of medicine against which, in the name of freedom, we are so vociferously and so repeatedly warned. Then consider the achievements of the various schools, cults, 'isms and creeds that would supplant this profession and consign it to forgetfulness.

The regular school of medicine is fallible. There are many things it cannot do. But it never ceases in its search for truth. The laboratory and the clinic room are its foundation and inspiration Nothing is taken for granted. It bases its deductions upon scientific facts, that must overcome the combined force of prejudice, tradition and vested interest.

What has become of cholera? What has become of infant diarrhea? What has become of smallpox, once a terror equal to plague? What has become of diphtheria and membranous croup? Who is gradually conquering tuberculosis, the greatest of human plagues? Who has dissipated the dread specter of hydrophobia? Who achieved the marvels of modern surgery? Has it not been the school of regular medicine? One by one, hostile schools of healing have been reared to combat the ancient profession of Hippocrates Where are they now? Only echo answers, Where?

Who is frantically and supplicatingly in demand upon those long battle lines in Europe? Is it chiropractics? Is it osteopaths? Is it Christian Science healers?

Those who seek to overthrow the regular practitioners found their assumptions upon a combination of superstition, and a wooden-faced denial of physical facts. They come and go like the passing seasons. They make no great scientific discoveries. They garner no tomes of physical knowledge. They are found in the end to be based upon pretense, gullibility, superstition and esoteric moonshine.

The regular school makes mistakes. It needs watching. It should never emerge to that haughty eminence where it will not receive its full quota of brain-clearing, humility-preserving kicks: but forget not, brethren, it is the salt of the earth, and suffering humanity's one dim and distant star of hope.

Blessing the bridges is an ancient custom in the Greek Church. The picture shows a scene during the blessing of a bridge left. The high priest in his ecclesiastical robes is seen at the Kindred Minds.

At one time when Napoleon was carrying out an operation which could only be accomplished with absolute secrecy he rode one day to the head of a line, where he heard a soldier say:

"Faith, if I were general in chief I know what I should do."

"Well," cried Napoleon, "what would you do?"

The soldier unfolded his plan. It was the very one which Napoleon himself had evolved

"Enough," cried the general. "Will you hold your tongue?"

After the battle which had proved the wisdom of the project he sought about for the soldier whose mind had mirrored his. The man was dead

Empress and Crinoline.

Empress Eugenie helped to drive crinoline out of fashion "In January, 1859," writes a chronicler of nineteenth century modes, "when crinolines had reached their largest circumference, the papers throughout Europe reported that Empress Eugenie had appeared at a court ball without a crinoline. This was an event which completely overshadowed Napoleon's famous New Year speech to the Austrian ambassador. In the autumn of the same year, when invitations were being issued for Compiegne, the empress spoke the word—no crinoline! Shortly afterward Queen Victoria also abjured the crinoline, and her example was followed by the empress of Austria."

Microscopic Mechanism.

Myrmecides, an ancient carver, was so proficient in microscopic mechanism that he made an ivory ship with all its decks, masts, yards, rigging and sails, in so small a compass that it might have been hidden under the wing of a fly. He also made a chariot with four wheels and as many harnessed horses, which took up scarcely more room than the ship

George Whitehead, an Englishman, made a ship, with all things pertaining to it, to move, as if it sailed upon a table. "All hands were aloft, a woman made music on a lute, and a little puppy cried in the midship, all of which variety," says the old writer, "was pleasant and diverting."

Shrapnel Fuse.

Shrapnel comprises a forked shell that carries lead bullets and a bursting charge. Screwed into the front end is the combination timing and percussion fuse, which can be set so as to explode the shell at any desired point and from which the flame for exploding the bursting charge is conveyed through a powder timing train and a tube filled with powder pellets down through the diaphragm of the powder to set. The fuse is an extremely accurate piece of mechanism, largely produced from screw machine parts, some of which are forged previous to machining An American factory takes ten hours to complete an entire shell, fuse and all. British factories take nearly fifteen.

Pantomimes.

The first pantomime introduced to the English stage was "Harem Bickers" and was by John Weaver This was in the year 1702 It was produced at Drury Lane The great instructor of pantomime in England was, however, John Rich, who devised this form of entertainment in 1717 His first emphatic success was in 1724, when he produced "The Necromancer, or History of Dr. Faustus." So successful was Rich with his pantomimes that Garrick, Quin and others became exasperated Rich lived to see pantomimes firmly established at Drury Lane and Covent Garden. He died in 1761.—London Mail.

KINGSTONIAN BOILERS

About A Chat We Had With A Man You Know

Not so long ago one of your acquaintances came in and wanted to know why we persisted in putting such a loud pedal on the Kingstonian.

What we said made him a buyer. What he now says makes him a Kingstonian booster.

He admitted that his boiler had only two cleanout doors for all the flues, and that they were mighty unhandily located somewhere around in the back. He was quite a surprised person when we showed him that the Kingstonian has a separate cleanout door for every flue, and that those doors are right in the front where it is so easy to clean them that you really do keep them clean.

Then we pointed out to him the good, big, generous-sized fire-box door. "Say, that's a real common sense door," he exclaimed. "Why, a chap could use a man's size shovel and scattering the coal all over the floor without banging it against the sides."

But what's the use of telling here all about the Kingstonian advantages we talked about? Drop in some time, and you and we can talk them over unhurriedly. Or let us send you a written-in-plain-English boiler book.

Daily Thought.

Life never seems so clear and easy as when the heart is beating faster at the sight of some generous, self-risking deed.—George Eliot.

Do what you can—give what you have. Only stop not with feelings; carry your charity into deeds; do and give what costs you something.—J. H. Thom.

COUNTY COURT TAKES A RECESS

No cases being found ready for trial when county court reconvened Monday afternoon at the court house all of the jurors in attendance were discharged for the term and court took a recess until Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at which time it is expected that the grand jury, which is in session, will be ready to report.

Two Milton cases had been set down for trial before court took a recess last Friday but this afternoon when the cases were called for trial one was dismissed and the other went over the term.

The first case was No. 19, William Robinson against Thomas A. O'Brien, an action for breach of contract. A. W. Lent, who represented Robinson, said he would consent to a dismissal of the complaint. William D. Brinnier appeared for O'Brien.

The second case was No. 20, Christ. H. O'Banks against Thomas A. O'Brien. The same attorneys were represented as in the other case. Mr. Lent moved the case over the term.

In the action brought by Julius Kaufman against William N. Martin, an action for conversion, A. D. Van Buren, who represented Mr. Martin, consented that a judgment be entered against his client. The judgment amounted to $90.

After Judge Jenkins had called the civil calendar and found no cases ready to be tried, he dismissed the jurors for the term and at the request of Assistant District Attorney Traver adjourned court until Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when the grand jury is expected to report.

GERMAN VERSION OF ALLIES' ATTACK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Sept. 28—(by wireless via Sayville, N. Y.) The general attack of the Anglo-French and Belgian forces all along the western front has proved a failure. All along the line the Germans are holding firm.

Military experts in analyzing the situation in the western theatre today declared there is no possibility of the allies breaking through the German front, on account of its great length 310 miles.

It is regarded as entirely probable that the Germans lost heavily in the artillery attacks of the allies and their subsequent assault with the bayonet because of the ferocity of the fighting. However, it is considered here that the British and French military authorities exaggerated when they claim 20,000 prisoners.

Dispatches from the front show that the Germans were not taken by surprise. They were given warning of the "allies drive" by the intense artillery preparations which stretched over many days. The Germans thus had time to strengthen the weak places in their lines with reinforcements and more defensive works.

German guns all along the front are replying to the allies bombardment with a hurricane of fire.

Automobiles in Collision.

Judge Hasbrouck's seven-passenger Studebaker car and a seven-passenger Hudson car from the Stuyvesant Garage were damaged in a head on collision on th eroad leading from O'Reilly street to the Twaalfskill Club about six o'clock Monday evening. The accident was due to the inability of the driver of each car to see the other car an account of the weeds, trees and foliage. Judge Hasbrouck's car was being driven by Edward Benson, his chauffeur, and the Hudson car was driven by Frank Longyear, who was taking a party to the club. There is a sharp turn in the road and the foliage is so high that autoists coming from opposite direction cannot see each other until they are at the turn. It is necessary to make the turn at good speed. Both chauffeurs sounded their horns as they approached the turn. Longyear brought his car to a stop near the turn just as Benson rounded the turn. Before the latter could stop his car, it had collided with the Hudson car. The radiators of both cars were damaged and in addition the front axle of Judge Hasbrouck's car was bent and the headlights were smashed. The wrecking car from the Stuyvesant garage towed both cars home.

ROGER M'BRIEN KILLED BY TRAIN

Roger McBrien of O'Neil street was instantly killed this afternoon by train 4 on the West Shore railroad at the crossing near the Deyo cider mill. He was on his way to St Mary's cemetery to cut the grass on his wife's grave when the train overtook him. This train was a fast one and was making good speed at the time, having left the depot at 2:15 o'clock.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Sept. 28.—The market was again one of war order specialties and many of these stocks made further violent advances at the opening and in the early trading, causing inactivity in what has been regarded as the general list. The heaviest trading was in Baldwin Locomotive which on rumors of changing control was in vigorous demand, advancing 8¼ points to 122. Industrial Alcohol rose on buying based on war order statements, and Distillers rose four points to 34¼. The minor steel industrials were active and strong at the opening, substantial gains being made in Pressed Steel, Great Northern Ore, Colorado Fuel and Republic Iron and Steel with the usual recessions resulting from profit-taking sales after the opening gains. Steel common opened ½ higher at 79¾, and after a reaction to under 79, moved up to 79½. Lackawanna rose 3¾ to 82¾. Tennessee Copper made a gain of 2¼ to 60, Sloss 3 points to 58⅜, Overland 3 points to 221 and General Motors 2 to 365. Bethlehem opened at 368, a two point gain. Anaconda advanced ⅝ to 74¼. The railway issues showed little change, Union Pacific yielding ¼, St. Paul ⅜ and Erie ⅜.

There were some violent advance in the late forenoon, with Baldwin Locomotive the most prominent feature. That stock at 2 o'clock sold at 140 and in the next few minutes moved up to 150, a gain of 36 points over last night's close. American Locomotive was active, selling up to 70½, a gain of four points. Bethlehem advanced a point further to 369, a gain in all of three points. Colorado Fuel sold up to 61¾. Crucible moved up to 103 and Pressed Steel advanced 7 points in all to 73¼. There was a better tone to the railway issues, Reading moving up a point to 154, and Union Pacific advanced to 133½. Sales of stocks at 2 o'clock were 1,401,300 shares.

There was evidence of selling pressure in the late forenoon, which caused recessions in the general list. Steel common dropped a point to 78½, and Crucible sold down to 100¾, against 101¼ at the close yesterday. American Can sold down to 63¾, Anaconda to 73, and American Locomotive to 67½, a loss of a point for each issue. The railway stocks were also freely supplied, Reading dropping ¾ to 153, Union Pacific a point to 132⅞ and Erie ⅜ to 32⅝. Distillers lost 1¼ from its early high level. Baldwin sold at 124¾, against 113¾ at the close yesterday and Studebaker sold at 144, against 141⅝ at the close yesterday. Money loaning at 1¾ percent.

The market closed nervous; governments unchanged; other bonds strong.

Optimistic Thought.

There is sometimes more to be feared from the physician than from the disease.

MINUTES IN MANHATTAN

(By Gotham Knickerbocker.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Sept. 28.—If somebody said to Father Knickerbocker: "There's nothing under your dome," it wouldn't be slang and it wouldn't be a lie. It would be the truth.

This big and foolish city recently spent $16,000,000 on a forty-story Municipal Building. It cost about twice as much per cubic foot as the handsomest private skyscrapers.

Long after it was started, work on the higher Woolworth building was begun, and long before it was anywhere near completed, the Woolworth building was humming and buzzing with busy clerks and stenographers, bank presidents and lawyers.

Morover the Municipal Building isn't completed yet and apparently never will be.

The upper fifteen stories are an utter waste, abandoned to bats, rats and stray felines.

Father Knick, indeed, has nothing under his big, ugly dome with the gilt angel at the top. He can't find the $50,000 to $90,000 it would cost to put this fifteen story trifle in order.

With the budget up to $212,000,000 no place can be found for this item, (although there are several municipal offices in private buildings in the neighborhood for which the city is paying good rentals.)

"Build your own subway" is the slogan of a new movement which the great flow of money caused by the war orders has brought about.

A group of men here are urging that property owners along the lines of proposed subways not included among the present gigantic projects going forward get together and finance the lines themselves.

The privately built subways would become part and parcel with the adjoining real estate. The boomers assert that the rise in the land value would more than compensate the real estate owners for any temporary loss in the operation of their rapid transist lines.

A new kind of spender has appeared on Broadway. He is a retired broker, a teetotaler, and said to be worth ten millions. His hobby is giving away money to waiters.

Instead of spending his wealth on chorus girls, and gay companions, he seems to find no greater enjoyment than making the rounds of an eating place, giving several large bills, which he produces from his pockets in bundles, to every Tuxedoed person he meets. One night he gave away scarf pins worth $1,000 each.

While he is in transit, other business suspends.

* * * *

While Manhattan is still a long way from Prohibition and the Near Beer Saloon, a big step toward aridity has just been taken. Owing to the increase of the state and federal tax, the well-beloved ten cent pint growler has died a sudden death. All pints are now fifteen cents. How can the poor, downtrodden hodcarrier exist!

Moreover, 300 saloons go out of business October 1. Some day even New York may vote itself grogless.

PORT EWEN.

A special meeting of the Brotherhood of the Reformed Church will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Sunday school room. Matters of importance will come before the meeting, and a large attendance is requested.

After a suspension of the weekly meetings during the summer season, on Friday evening, October 1, Hope Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias, will resume its regular weekly meetings, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The Wrong Ticket.

Tommy Atkins on leave from the front has been given a free railroad pass to take him home, and he utilized part of his brief holiday in getting married. On the return journey when the conductor asked to see his pass, he produced by accident his marriage lines. The conductor handed the paper back to him. "This is the ticket for a very long and tiresome journey young man," he said gravely, "but not on this line."—Boston Transcript.

The main is being laid from the corner of North Front street and Washington avenue through Washington avenue to Hurley avenue and out Hurley avenue to the city line, a distance of about three-quarters of a mile. Work is progressing rapidly.

Dodge Subscription Concerts Again.

Having been deprived of the Dodge Subscription Concerts for one year, the music loving people of this community are hailing with delight the announcement that the concerts will be resumed this year with artists as noted as those Mr. Dodge has previously brought to Kingston scheduled for three performances. Already the patrons for the concerts have been secured, and regular tickets and students' tickets are now for sale at Rider's Music Store on Wall street. The students' tickets have been especially priced so that music students in the community may avail themselves of these educational as well as delightful concerts. For the first concert, which will occur on Wednesday evening, October 13th, at the new High School Building (where all the concerts will be held), the world famous Godowsky, Russian-Polish pianist will be the artist. The bride was gowned in an elegant tailored gown of midnight blue broadcloth, fur-trimmed with hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley. Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Roach left for a wedding journey to Virginia through the Blue Ridge Mountains and on their return will reside in New York city. The bride who has many friends in Kingston, her former home, is a graduate of Syracuse University, and the groom, connected with the Garfield National Bank of New York city, was a graduate of Tulane University, New Orleans. The young people were the recipients of many costly and beautiful gifts, among them being a very substantial check from the bride's father, and from the groom's parents the family silver dated "1840," which was buried during the Civil War by an old negro slave and unearthed after the war. Another valued heirloom was a silver pitcher, presented to the groom's grandfather, the late Major Roach, by the employees of the Vicksburg Railroad, the first railroad in the south, and bearing the date of 1854.

Wood Fires.

Do you know that there is a different fragrance, a different manner of burning to each tree, whose parts you bring to the open campfire or your own hearth; that some woods shriek at their second death after the cutting, that others pass with gracious calm and still others give up their dearest reality at the moment of breaking under the fire, like the released spirit of a saint that was articulate heretofore only in beautiful deeds?—Will Levington Comfort in Craftsman.

Joys of Hope Deferred.

"'Hope deferred maketh the heart sick,' says the proverb; but," said Mr. Glimmerton, "it has never struck me that way. If I could have all my hopes fulfilled I feel that I should be dull and logy, satiated, without interest, but with hope deferred I have always something to look forward to. And has it not often happened that realization has proved less joyous than anticipation? Why, certainly. We may find success when we reach it but an empty shell and laugh to think that we had struggled for it so eagerly. Hope's the thing.

"Let me have my hopes, or at least some of them, deferred. I like the picture."—New York Sun.

America's First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse built on this continent was at St. Augustine, Fla. Its chief use was as a lookout, whence the Spanish people of the town could see vessels approaching from Spain or get notice of the coming of foes in time to run away. The tower attracted the attention of Francis Drake as he was sailing along the coast with his fleet of high pooped ships on his way home from pillaging the cities of the Spanish main, so he stopped long enough to loot the town and destroy what he could not take away.

TEXAS RANGERS AT SHORT RANGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Brownsville, Texas Sept. 28.—It takes more qualifications to be a Texas Ranger than to be a soldier in the United States Army. For one thing you must be able to shoot ninety per cent average—very few soldiers can do that. And then, you have to be more than five feet ten inches tall. You must know how to ride like a cowpuncher, and be skillful in handling the lariat. You must be a man unqualified nerve, and be ready at all times to face danger without a flinch.

It was my good fortune to be one of a party of ten rangers who left Brownsville early one evening in pursuit of some Mexican bandits who had recently raided an American ranch in the vicinity. Nothing ever excites these men, and as they sightened their cartridge belts, one would imagine they were going out more on a pleasure trip than a man hunt.

I rode beside a tall quiet, handsome boy of about 22 years of age. His face was as tanned as a Mexican's but his steel blue eyes betrayed his Anglo-Saxon nationality.

Although, as I said before, he was but a boy, deep furrows, not wrinkles marked his handsome features. They were the leep, weather marks which accompany the square jaws of a man of great force His tall Texas sombrero sat jauntily on a shock of yellow hair.

"Are you married?" I asked him, when we were well on our way.

"No, sir," he drawled, "we rangers never marry It is one of the rules."

Whoever made that rule certainly beat a lot of pretty Texas girls out of fine husbands.

We rode along the country road in silence. No one had much to say. They are quiet fellows, these rangers. They are very unobtrusive in times of peace, and very much in evidence when there is trouble going on.

We had now entered that part of the country which is covered with a network of mesquite brush, ten feet in height, as thick as any African jungle ever could be. It seemed a silent command for the men to hold themselves in readiness as we trotted along.

I started to whistle an old familiar tune.

"Shut up," said my partner quietly

We came to a small clearing and halted. The waters of the Rio Grande were dotted with the reflection of the stars in the bright sky. Across the river was Mexico, and her vast, silent prairies gleamed like silver in the starlight. One of the rangers dismounted and examined the ground closely. In a moment he was up again and in the saddle.

"They have gone that way," he pointed northward.

"How does he know that its the men we are after?" I asked my companion.

"By the foot prints," he replied. "Greasers never take the trouble to to shoe their horses. An American's horse is always shod, that is the difference, and the hoof prints point northward."

Here we left the road and took up a trail through the chaparral, single file. The thud, thud of our horses hoofs in the soft earth, and the occasional squeak of a saddle were the only sounds which broke the stillness of the night. Away towards Brownsville, the scream of an automobile horn was heard; across the Rio Grande the high falsetto voice of a Mexican sentinel and the clear notes of an American trumpeter's bugle at Fort Brown were the only other sounds that penetrated the silence.

Suddenly, without warning, the crash of a body dashing through the brush immediate to our left was heard. In almost the same instant, ten saddles were emptied, and ten big, strapping Texans had dashed into the brush like so many rabbits The horses, but for turning curious eyes toward the brush in which their masters had disappeared, remained absolutely still.

A minute later, however, the ten men returned and remounted.

"Coyote," explained my partner, with a smile. "The damn critters are always fooling us, because they sound just like a greaser trying to get away."

We had ridden but a mile further along the trail, when the shrill whinny of a pony broke through the stillness. It halted our small band like magic Although no one said a word, each man knew what the other thought, and they acted together Each ranger dismounted and took his rifle from the scabbard.

"It's them, I guess," my partner informed me. "You had better stay with the horses and keep your head under cover in case there is any shooting. We will be back in a little while."

Although every one of the ten rangers who took into the brush were big fellows, each wearing heavy boots, yet, when they had gone but ten paces from where I stood, I could not hear a sound—not even the breaking of a dry twig.

Panthers looking for game in an African jungle could not have moved more silently, and although I knew that the men were not more than 100 feet away, the only sound that brike the stillness was the lapping waters in the Rio Grande to my left.

Another of the things which amazed me was the apparent understanding of the horses as to what was happening. Not one of the eleven animals moved or even brushed his head against a mesquite brush.

Five minutes later, the sound of a shot cracked through the air. I was in a state of feverish excitement. Never before had I been in a manhunt, and this one, staged in a still night of the prairies, bordering the waters of the Rio Grande made me doubt, even then, that it was taking place on American soil. The shot was followed by another one, then a third, then many at all once, and in a few seconds more the air rang with the cracks of rifles. I heard an oath screamed in Spanish; a sharp voiced command to halt, in English. I heard the plunk of a body jumping into the Rio Grande, then another one and another one. Some one was crashing madly through the mesquite brush to my right, then all was silence again A few minutes later, the ten rangers returned unhurt. While I was trembling in my excitement, the men quietly put their guns back into their scabbards; mounted their horses, turned around, and started back to Brownsville again. Not a word was spoken and each man's face was as immobile as though nothing had happened.

"Did—did—did you get any of them?" I whispered to my partner.

"Five," he said quietly, without looking up

Ten minutes passed before I nerved myself to ask the second question.

"What did you do with them?" The question seemed to amuse him.

"Greasers are like dogs," he answered. "Let them rot where they die"

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Sept. 28.—The explanation for the many low hit games pitched by veterans in the last month or so of every baseball campaign is that they do most of their performing against "rookies."

Along about September 10 the managers of clubs that are out of the pennant fights pull their regulars out of the line-ups and give the youngsters a chance to display their wares. Only about one youngster in every 15 measures up to major league standards, and the result is that the opposing veteran pitchers have a comparatively easy time of it.

Also, it will be noticed that during the late part of the season the clubs that remain in the fight for the hunting roll up huge scores when pitted against the "out-of-the-race" clubs. The explanation is simple. The pennant contending teams keep their strongest line-up in the field, while the manager of the other team, anxious to try out his new pitchers, pits them against the flag chasing outfit.

Oh, yes, sometimes the veteran club strikes a tartar—find itself unable to hit the straight and curved offerings of a youngster. But that happens only about once in every 10 times.

Nervousness is Rookies Foe.

Nervousness and over-anxiety often sends back to the bushes many a youngster who, under normal circumstances, should make good in the majors.

The "rookie" getting his big league chance, realizes that from 15 to 20 other youngsters are getting a trial at the same time and that a manager hasn't much time to devote to watching—or developing—him.

The "rookie" therefore, tries with his whole heart and soul to show brilliancy in his first few trials. He is fearful that he won't succeed—and terribly anxious to succeed. The result is that instead of being cool and calm he is in a wildly excited state. He foozles drives that would have been easy for him if nervousness hadn't afflicted him. He goes up to the bat, and instead of exercising patience and caution he tries to "kill" the ball. He goes after nearly everything pitched in his direction and the result is that he fans or pushes out a puny grounder or an easy fly.

Cobb's Case of Nervousness.

Ty Cobb's anxiety to make good nearly caused him to be sent back to the minors. The wonderful Georgian joined the Tigers back in the fall of 1904-5. He was purchased for $700 and came into the big leagues unheralded. True, he had made a good record in the south—but his record was not half as wonderful as two-thirds of the minor leaguers who get a major league chance each year—and flivver.

Cobb got his tryout in 1905. He was over anxious. He did what the majority of "rookies" do—swing at nearly everything that came his way. In the field he showed up only ordinarily well. But Ty had the "pep" and he looked promising. The Tiger management decided to give him another chance in 1906 despite the fact that he had batted only .[illegible]

In the spring of 1906 Ty showed up a little better—but nervousness and anxiety were his enemies. He wanted to hold down a regular job—wanted to prove that he was a ball player. And so he, in the early part of the season, performed with only ordinary results.

Just about that time the New York Americans and the Tigers were involved in trade negotiations. The Yankees wanted Cobb and were willing to give Delehanty, then in the heyday of his career, in exchange. The Tigers balked—they wanted a pitcher in addition—and the deal fell through.

Ty then was told that he had a regular job in the Tiger outfield. Right then and there he settled down. His nervousness left him, over anxiety no longer afflicted him. He began playing ball, unworried and unafraid and he has since developed into the most brilliant player that baseball has ever known.

CEMETERY IMPROVEMENT.

Terpening Burying Ground Association is Making Progress.

A meeting of the Terpening Burying Ground Association was held on Saturday when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, D. W. Benton; secretary, George Van Aken; treasurer, Dr. C. O. Sahler. The sum of $59.70 was paid the treasurer to be used for the caring for the cemetery in the future.

It was also decided at the meeting that all those who have contributed or will contribute in the future towards the permanent improvements or to the fund for caring for the cemetery in the future will be enrolled as members of the association.

The last Saturday of this month was set aside as the time when the annual meeting of the association will be held. The committee on permanent improvements was discharged with thanks.

Two years ago it was when a few interested persons met in this sacred spot where sleep so many of the honored dead, whose influence is felt yet in the homes as well as in the state and nation, and then resolved that this long neglected spot which was merely a forest of trees and brush; the abode of beasts and serpents, should become a place of beauty. Today the committee in charge of making those improvements with pride can point to one of the most beautiful rural cemeteries lying along the banks of the beautiful Hudson river, overgrown as it is with a beautiful mantle of green grass. Thanks are extended to all those who gave so liberally of their substance, and ifthere are any who wish yet to give toward the fund to keep in order this time honored spot they may do so by sending the money to Dr. C. O. Sahler.

We wish to extend an invitation to any one to come and visit this spot where perhaps there sleeps some of your ancestors and see for yourself what has been done.

D. W. BENTON,
President.
